More under-25s fail breath tests

By DAVID WATKINSON

More than six per cent of young drivers failed a breath test during a major crackdown.

Police tested 13,000 motorists during a four-week blitz on drink and drug driving in Lancashire.

And officers expressed their disappointment that so many young drivers failed, or refused, tests.

Overall just 1.9per cent of drivers failed the roadside tests, down from 2.4per cent in a similar operation last year.

Superintendent Peter O'Dwyer said: "There remains a disproportional number of people in the under-25 category failing, or refusing, a test. The failure and refusal rate for under-25s was 6.1per cent, compared to a failure rate of 1.5per cent for over-25s.

"We will continue to work very closely with other agencies in educating this vulnerable group and making sure they clearly understand the dangers of drink-driving.

"We take a tough line against those who persist in driving after drinking, or taking drugs. We carry out enforcement activity throughout the year, not just during specific campaigns.

"Any amount of alcohol affects your ability to drive, and the only safe option is not to drive if you plan to drink. Our message is simple, do not drink and drive, and do not take drugs and drive."

But, overall, fewer drivers over the limit

The annual crackdown saw checkpoints at key locations, where officers administered drink and drugs tests.

In 2010, there were 46 fatal collisions in Lancashire, and eight of these involved drink, or drugs.

County Coun Tim Ashton, cabinet member for highways and transport, said: "It's very encouraging to see the number of people who choose to drink and drive is continuing to fall. This success shows the value of the many years of sustained enforcement by police and the accompanying road safety campaigns."

Corey, 14, in Mensa

TOP MARKS: Corey Bolton with his Mensa pin

By NAFEESA SHAN

A 14-year-old boy's IQ has placed him in the top one per cent of the country after excelling at a Mensa test.

And, as a result of his score, Rhyddings Business and Enterprise School pupil Corey Bolton has become a fully-fledged member of Mensa.

Corey gained a score of 150 in the problem-solving tests, which places him in the top one per cent in the country and, in the second part of the test, the cultural test, he scored 139, placing him in in the top two per cent of the population.

Corey, of Whinny Heights, Blackburn, was encouraged to take the test at a sitting in Blackburn College when his form tutor and maths teacher Clare Jackson spotted his natural academic ability.

Former Belthorn Primary School pupil Corey, who is unsure of what career he wants to pursue, said: "I was surprised when I was given the results because I didn't think I had done that well. I was very happy and quite surprised that I had got into Mensa. My friends are pleased for me, but they call me Mensa boy now."

Corey's mum, Amanda Bolton, said: "Corey has got a very good memory. He remembers anything that he has seen and is always reading the newspapers.

"He is very much into statistics. When he was younger he used to study the atlas and knows the names of mountains and volcanoes

"He's always been an avid reader. When he was at school I had to be careful about which library books to choose because I didn't want him to know the topic before he went to class.

"As far as I'm aware there's nobody we know in the family who is like Corey. We are very proud of him."

Maths teacher Mrs Jackson said: "We were absolutely delighted. I took him down to the test to let him give it a try, but I was gobsmacked when he passed."

Join walk to help poorly children

By CATHERINE PYE

Sick children are to get a boost from Darwen councillors in a 60-mile trek.

Sudell councillor Martin McCaughran wants people to join him, and his colleagues, in the trek from Darwen to Manchester Airport and back, to raise money towards the cost of transporting children to, and from, hospitals.

He said: "There are a lot of families in Darwen in difficult situations with poorly children. As well as having the stress of their child being ill, they often have to travel to hospitals across the country, which is very costly.

DETERMINATION: Caitlin Jones

"These are tough times, and we town councillors don't just sit here doing nothing, we want to help."

Coun McCaughran, 48, said the town council had been inspired by 15-year-old Caitlin Jones, of Somerset Avenue, Darwen, who has raised over £12,000 for cancer charities since the death of her father in 2008.

Caitlin, who suffers from physical and learning difficulties, has to make regular trips to see specialists in Birmingham.

Coun McCaughran said: "This young girl has shown such determination to raise the money.

"People will think it's crazy to walk from Darwen to Manchester and back within 24 hours, but I firmly believe it can be done. We need the same determination that Caitlin has shown."

The town council has approached Caitlin to take part in the walk, which can be opted in and out of for people who cannot manage the full distance.

Tracy Jones, Caitlin's mum, said: "I think it's a superb idea.

"People have no idea about the tremendous expense of travelling up and down the motorways, food and entertainment needed, until they've had to do it. We don't get any support. It's down to the parents."

No date has yet been set for the journey. Manchester Airport has been chosen because of the high number of people the walkers can appeal to for donations. To take part, contact Coun McCaughran at MMccaughran@darwentowncouncil.org.uk

Drama gem on 'emerald isle'

Actress Simone Lahbib, 46, born in Stirling, Scotland, has starred in Bad Girls, Wire In The Blood and now ITV1 crime drama Single-Handed. She discusses the Ireland-based series, which can be seen on Thursdays on ITV1.

60 SECONDS WITH ... SIMONE LAHBIB

TELL US ABOUT THE NEW RUN OF SINGLE-HANDED

It's a very well-written series; the storylines are very poignant. It's very rich writing and very moving. People can look forward to good performances, great stories, and the scenery of the area is just stunning. Connemara's beautiful.

HOW WOULD YOU DESCRIBE YOUR CHARACTER, GEMMA BURGE?

She's been in a relationship with Brian for seven years, and I imagine five of them too long. She's a photographer and the light there (Connemara) is beautiful. She loves photographing old discarded things.

THANKS TO LEADING MAN JACK DRISCOLL, HER ROMANTIC LIFE IS A LITTLE COMPLICATED, ISN'T IT?

Yes, she spends a lot of time with Brian's cousin, who's Jack, and falls in love with him at the same time. You've got this love triangle story going on; the ups and downs of all that; and the betrayal, the emotional rollercoaster that that takes everyone on.

TAKE US BACK TO WIRE IN THE BLOOD. YOU MUST HAVE BEEN THRILLED BY ITS SUCCESS

Yes, that sold really well around the world. Robson (Green) made me laugh every day. It was just a big disappointment that it got pulled. One of the casualties of the recession, along with an awful lot of other dramas such as Taggart, which I was in, and The Bill.

A date with Doherty

By JOHN ANSON

WARM-UP SHOW: Pete Doherty is to play Blackburn

Libertines and Babyshambles star Pete Doherty is to play a special warm-up date in Blackburn ahead of this summer's V Festivals in Reading and Leeds.

Doherty will play King George's Hall on Thursday, August 25, with tickets priced at £19.50.

The show is being staged by the newly-formed 250 Plus Promotions, created by the owners of Blackburn's Live Lounge, and a local promoter.

Paul McGurty, Julian Clayton, and Pete Eastwood, have already brought a number of big names to Blackburn, including Ocean Colour Scene, Twisted Wheel, The Charalatans and The Bluetones.

But the Doherty date represents their bigggest coup so far.

Paul McGurty said: "We want to put Blackburn back on the musical map.

"We want to keep up this momentum we have behind us at the moment and keep the people we work with interested in Blackburn.

"There has been a lull in recent years with the number of high-profile bands coming to Blackburn compared to a few years ago."

■ Pete Doherty, King George's Hall, Blackburn, Thursday, August 25. Details from the box office on 0844 847 1664

Cinema round-up

ZOOKEEPER (PG) Once zookeeper Griffin Keyes (Kevin James) recovers from the shock that beasts can talk, he follows their conflicting advice about how to woo Stephanie.

THE TREE OF LIFE (12A) A film of long, haunting silences and apparent inactivity that glimpses fragments of Earth's turbulent history, starring Brad Pitt.

Lawn on roof of new fire station

By NAZIA PARVEEN

Firefighters in Blackburn will be working under a lawn as the new community fire station will have a grass roof.

Insects and birds are expected to flock to the new 'bio-diverse' building, in Canterbury Street, when it is completed at the beginning of next year.

Part of the roof will be covered in a layer of earth, sown with drought-resistant plants, called sedums, trapping huge quantities of rainwater that would otherwise go straight into the nearest drains.

ON TARGET: The new fire station taking shape in front of the old

The hardy alpine plants spend their days transforming CO2, the main greenhouse gas, into oxygen, and the patch of greenery will also attract wildlife to the area. Chris Fogarty, watch manager at Blackburn Fire Station, said: "It will be like a living roof that will be able to rejuvenate itself every year as it is extremely resilient and needs little maintenance.

"It will also provide an environment for insects and promote biodiversity. There is a lot of wasted space on the tops of buildings in towns and this is a good way to make use of it."

Work on the site has reached a milestone as the steel structure and the roof were completed.

The building, just across the road from the present fire station, in Byrom Street, is being built as part of a PFI programme which will see 16 fire stations built across Lancashire, Cumbria and Merseyside. Lancashire's four new fire stations will be built by Mansell, a Balfour Beatty company, at Blackburn, Chorley, Burnley, and Fleetwood.

The building is expected to be completed in February next year.

Lancashire's Chief Fire Officer Peter Holland said: "The project is running on target and it will be a major boost for Lancashire and for Blackburn when it is completed."

He added: "The four new Community Fire Stations will offer tremendous facilities as a base for our fire safety work in those areas."

Renovated shops open

RIBBON CUT: Darwen town crier Anthony Meleady, with the mayor Coun Karimeh Foster, and traders at the opening of the new shops

All five new shop units at the front of Darwen Town Hall are now officially open.

The project, which has seen traditional shop fronts reinstated to the historic town and market hall, was opened by borough mayor Karimeh Foster.

The new businesses include Bump to Baby, selling maternity and new-born goods, Topz 'n' Trainers, selling fashion clothing, and a traditional men's barbers, Guise. Former Darwen Market traders Deli Carlo and The Sweet Shop have filled the other two units. The Heritage Lottery Fund provided £84,763 towards the renovations, which totalled £207,553. The balance was met by Blackburn with Darwen Council.
